MFA: Washington, London, and Brussels are funding provocations similar to the one in Bucha

MOSCOW, April 6 – RIA Novosti. Washington, London, and Brussels are funding provocations like the one in Bucha, said Russian Foreign Ministry spokesperson Maria Zakharova.

"Who is sponsoring all of this? Washington , London , and the collective Brussels ," Zakharova said during a briefing, pointing out that the same thing happened in Srebrenica , Aleppo , and Douma in Syria .

Srebrenica and its surroundings cover an area of over 500 square kilometers, comprising more than 80 villages, hamlets, and towns. This toponym has become synonymous with the genocide of the Muslim population, which, according to the West, was committed by Bosnian Serb armed forces in July 1995. Over time, numerous facts emerged indicating that what happened in Srebrenica was a planned and well-executed operation, backed by Western intelligence agencies.

Earlier, Ukrainian authorities and media outlets distributed a video allegedly filmed in the city of Bucha in the Kyiv region , showing bodies of dead people lying on the road. Many internet users questioned the veracity of Kyiv's accusations against Moscow , noting that there was no blood on the ground near the bodies, and that some of the dead were wearing white armbands, suggesting they could have been killed by Ukrainian security forces or territorial defense forces. Users also noted that the "dead" were moving their arms, and when looking in the rearview mirror of the cameraman's car, it appeared as if one of the "dead" had shifted position as soon as the car passed by.

The Russian Ministry of Defense stated that all photographs and videos published by the Kyiv regime, allegedly documenting some "crimes" committed by Russian military personnel in the town of Bucha in the Kyiv region, are "yet another provocation." The ministry also noted that during the time the town was under the control of the Russian Armed Forces, not a single local resident suffered any violence. The ministry also noted that all Russian units had completely withdrawn from Bucha on March 30, and that exits north of the town were not blocked. Meanwhile, the southern outskirts, including residential areas, were subjected to 24-hour shelling by Ukrainian forces using heavy artillery, tanks, and multiple launch rocket systems.

Russian presidential press secretary Dmitry Peskov stated on Monday that Russia categorically rejects any accusations of involvement in the deaths in Bucha and urges international leaders not to rush to make sweeping accusations against Russia but to listen to Moscow's arguments. He added that Russian diplomats will continue to raise the issue of the Bucha provocation on the UN Security Council agenda .

The fake news about Bucha was invented to justify sanctions, the Foreign Ministry stated.
